"It is essential for the operation of our company to make sure that our data is secure. History

We use the product in a Windows-based environment where virtual solutions as well as separate, functional physical servers are present. We operate a local mail server and functional servers, which are essential for the operation of the company. We are connected to the Polish parent company, through which we use systems developed for the corporate group. A few years ago, we were only able to retrieve our data with huge effort due to a virus infection.

Challenge

Our major challenge in launching the new software program was harmonizing it with the specially developed applications, for which Panda provided perfect partnership and assistance so that the new product was launched smoothly without disturbing work processes.

Solution

We had had a long relationship with Panda as a manufacturer. It is essential for the operation of our company to make sure that our data is secure. In the current market, Panda was the only producer and service provider capable of perfectly covering the sectors of data security and safe operation, where we felt there were deficiencies, with one product range. We obtain protection from their product with which we can prevent zero-day attacks. Logging and monitoring computers in the network has become as simple as can be. Reports provide substantial information to the management. All in all, these things could only have been implemented with high costs by procuring several software programs and expending great effort. Technical help and product support does work; whatever problem we turned to Panda with, we receive the solution within a short deadline.

Information about the Company

Maspex Olympos Kft.'s three-hectare property is located in Nyárlőrinc in the heart of the Kiskunság region, where fruit processing, mineral water and soft drink production, warehousing and delivery all take place.
